2017 KCCS Facial Volumetric Augmentation Surgery Workshop

Greetings!

The aged face features two signs, facial volume reduction and sagging. In order to improve this, commonly the main surgery methods can be divided into surface surgery and volume surgery. Among these surgeries, the surface surgery is mainly consisting of incisional face lift and the volume surgery mainly uses filler, fat, implants, etc. Previously, volume surgery was the supporting procedure in surface surgery. However, people has become very interested in volume surgery with the increasing popularity of non-invasive methods. The most common side effects of procedures that increase facial volume are sagging and unnatural facial contour.

Many different methods have been developed, but the anatomy and facial aging process have been systematically considered. The facial volume surgery using manmade filler and autologous fat developed by Dr. Safi Kang not only prevent the surgery's side effects but also giving him the valuable experience on achieving amazing results of facial lifting. In addition, this workshop will be providing very academic experience to the attendees by various live demonstrations of not only procedure that increase facial volume using PDO thread but also facial volume surgery that uses silicone implant. Particularly, in this workshop, please take note of the fantastic improvement of nasolabial folds and labiomandibular folds using lifting and unfolding technique in man-made filler injection.

Thanks! I look forward to see you in Busan!
